

The Objective of Faith = The will of God - Faith is not the means of getting our wishes done in heaven but His will on earth -

→ Faith enables us to fulfil the redemptive purpose of God -

A sport car = "For official use only" - Faith carries such a label - "For official use only"

This may sound harsh - but not if we realize, believe that whatever is God's will is best for us - What's good for God, good for us - there is no conflict between God's glory & our good.

- Abraham believed in order to become what God said he was - Even Jesus - "The Son can do nothing of himself -

we must allow the Bible to speak for itself & resist the temptation to manipulate it to say what we want.

- You can make the Bible say anything. Men have ever used the Bible to justify murder!

- Bob Wensley

Facta being the sole condition of promise, ought also to be the sole characteristic of those in whom it will be realized.

- Like the Athenian who long to hear some new thing - equals to a basic desire: to rise above human practice a mysterious mentality that sees the traveling or television preacher as the ~~expert~~ expert, the specialist & the stay-at-home pastor as of a general practitioner who is so busy working & working he has had no time to delve into the "deeper things" of the faith.

2 Cor => Macedonia gave only their "poverty"

Luke 6:38 - Look at the context

X gave his blood so we could drink a Cochlac & be free of asthma
